The Mason LINE

by Chan Mason

Now with the Christmas season approaching apace, Christmas trees will be making their appearance on almost every vacant lot. Many of us like to buy our trees early in order to get a better selection. This foresightedness can lead to trouble along about Christmas time, however. The tree becomes mighty dry, thereby creating a fire hazard. We might suggest you contact the L. G. Fire Department concerning flame-proofing the tree.

—M L—

We might also suggest that if Mama must wash papa's nylon shirt these rainy, overcast days, she remember not to hang it near the heater to dry. Fire Chief Hensley reports two fires in 24 hours caused by much the same procedure.

—M L—

Cooperation does pay off. The wholehearted support of the L. G. Fire Department's inspection program by L. G. Citizens has paid off quickly and rather handsomely. The following letter received by your fire commission attests to this fact.

Mr. Channing Mason
Chairman
Board of Fire Commissioners
Lemon Grove, Calif.

Dear Mr. Mason:

As a result of the grading and report made by the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific, and subsequent re-rating by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, revised fire insurance rates for Lemon Grove Fire Protection District are about to be released to all interested companies, agents and brokers. Average percentage reductions, as shown below, will apply to new and renewal policies effective November 1, 1955.

Masonry buildings with mercantile occupancies	13.5
Contents	7.7
Frame buildings with mercantile occupancies	11.3
Contents	7.0
Frame buildings classed as industrial, and special classes of occupancy	9.7
Contents	9.7
Dwellings	19.0
Contents	7.0

The percentages given are the average for risks in each class. There is, however, a slight variation in the reduction applicable to dwellings, depending on the type of roof construction.

Buildings equipped with automatic sprinklers are not included in the tabulation. Sprinklered risks are separately rated, and the effect of city protection in the rate is proportionately less because of the substantial credits given for automatic sprinkler systems.

Yours very truly,
J. Silveira

—M L—

The rate reduction came as a complete surprise as it was in addition to the recent sizeable reduction given when the department received its new Class VI rating.

Only Son, Smonly Son— Goldy Has Kids All Over the Place

Last week this newspaper got carried away by its own enthusiasm concerning the expansion of Michael's Cafe at 7826 Broadway.

The picture we painted about the expansion was a rosy one . . . but a grey note crept in.

Henry Goldy is the owner of the place. We said that the cafe was named after his only son.

As a matter of fact it was named after his younger son, Michael.

He not only has a son named Michael but he has a son named Howard who is a Helix High School student. As if that isn't enough, he has a married daughter, too—and grandchildren yet.

We don't know how old Michael is or where he stands in relation to being youngest or oldest, but this we know now, he ain't the only son.

Invitation Still Open For Toastmasters

"Want to be a Toastmaster?" It is suggested that those desiring to become a member of a local Toastmasters Club to attend their next meeting at the Lemon Grove Congregational Church, in Friendship Hall, corner of Main and Church, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, December 6.

Monday, Nov. 28, the newly proposed Toastmasters Club of Lemon Grove met at the home of Charles Breuninger, 3424 Fairway Dr., under the gavel of Charles Serr, the new president, and under the guidance of several members of the National City club.

There were 18 new members present, and at least six others that intend to join, which nearly fills the quota of 30 members.

Toyland Parade to Have Lemon Grove Unit

More than 300,000 spectators will see the 19th Annual North Park Toyland Parade on Sunday at 2 p.m., Andrew H. Ekern, general chairman, announced yesterday.

"It will be not only the biggest, but the most spectacular parade in the 18 years that it has been presented by the North Park Business Club as a Christmas gift to the children of this area," he said.

"At the close of entries last week, 40 major floats, representing nearly every community in San Diego County, in addition to many clubs and groups, had completed their registration, and 23 of the top-ranking bands in the area had entered," said Ekern.

Included among the bands are Helix High and Lemon Grove Intermediate schools.

Twenty marching units, including majorette corps, drill teams, pom pon groups, drum and bugle corps, etc., will march in the parade in which more than 2,500 will march, according to Ekern.

"Many of the floats will be in community entries, that is complete with band, marching unit and dignitaries," Ekern said. An old fashioned stage coach will be entered by the El Centro Chamber of Commerce, and will form the major unit of a pioneer days division, it was announced. Lemon Grove will be represented by two lovely queens, Beverly Bodie and Marlene Apple.

"In addition," said Ekern, "there will be plenty of clowns, and other funnymen to entertain the youngsters."

The parade will move from 33rd St., west along University Ave. to Arizona St., thence south to Morely Field. Ekern recommended Arizona St. as an "ideal place to view the parade."

Men's Club Committee to Work on School Site Problems

Three items were resolved Friday by the Lemon Grove Men's Club and two of them had to do with this season's theme, "incorporation."

A request is to be made by letter asking irrigation district board members to appear at an early meeting and discuss the tax liability of the January $5 million water bond issue. This is to be expedited so that the bond issue will not become bogged down in a possible incorporation campaign.

Voters, it is feared, would renounce a bond issue should annexation to San Diego be likely because the bonded indebtedness would be carried with the community. Annexation is the next step should incorporation fail, members stated. Information on tax and assessment rates, and bonded indebtedness liability will be asked of board members.

Meanwhile, the irrigation district board had accepted an invitation to meet with the State Chamber of Commerce group in Los Angeles this week but accepted the invitation for December 9.

A committee has been named to sit with the Lemon Grove Elementary School Board, and the Grossmont High School Board to attempt an adjustment of property holdings to permit the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley High School to be moved north, away from the proposed, closing-in San Diego city boundary line. Named to this committee were Gordon Keyes, John Dail, Dan Apra, Wally Dorman, chairman, and Ernie Newton.

The committee will seek to work out plans for changing the present 50 acre site on Sweetwater to another location, one not so near the San Diego city limits, should the proposed Bollenbacher annexation take place. Bollenbacher, one of the developers of Allied Gardens, plans to build 1,500 homes on Sweetwater south of Jamacha Road. The land is presently arid and annexation to San Diego to acquire water was part of the plans. Later, the local water works said they would work out an arrangement to serve the project.

Should the area annex, it would put the city boundary almost against the high school grounds.

Lemon Grove Elementary District has a 19 acre junior high school tract between Palm and Mt. Vernon on the east end of Palm Avenue. The group expressed hopes that the elementary site might be used for a high school and that the junior high school might be built elsewhere.

Because Bert Betts, the club's president, is also president of the elementary school board he disqualified himself as a participant in Friday's meeting. Frenchy Faucher, vice president of the club, sat as president.

New officers for the club will be elected December 9.

Supervisors on National County Officials Junket

Help for County Via Federal In Lieu Taxes Seen By Bird

Support for an accelerated federal government highway program came from a meeting of the National Association of County Officials in New York, Supervisor Dave Bird said today.

The supervisor returned last week from attending the meeting on behalf of San Diego County.

Bird said the association support was not unmixed with restrictions. However, the majority favored financing on a pay as you go basis.

"The group was anxious that federal support under the FAS—Federal Aid to Secondary Roads, known generally as Farm to Market roads—will not be disturbed by any other highway program," Bird reported.

He said the association split over a unanimous recommendation to the federal government that gas tax funds be used only for roads. Many states now have laws prohibiting the use of this tax fund for anything but road building and maintenance.

Another request of the federal government by the county officials' association is for standardization of highway signals and markers throughout all the states.

Supervisor Dave Bird said today he thought definite progress had been made toward getting legislation passed by congress requiring federal government in lieu tax payments to local agencies.

Bird returned last week from a meeting in New York of the National Association of County Officials, which met to discuss the possibility of such legislation.

"Nearly 60 representatives in congress, in both political parties, were contacted and all but one agreed to cooperate in this matter," Bird reported.

"The problem involved is obtaining legislation which will force the federal government to pay in lieu taxes to local agencies on property it owns which is in direct competition with private enterprise," the supervisor explained.

Bird said 11 western states were among those pushing the hardest for such relief. He pointed out that one county in Washington is 87 per cent owned by the federal government.

The problem in San Diego County has been in big aircraft corporations owned by divisions of the federal government which do not pay local taxes.

Part of the property used by Rohr Aircraft Corporation in Chula Vista, for instance, Bird reported, is owned by the General Services Administration and claims for return of local taxes have been entered because of this. Prior to General Services taking over the properties, the RFC (Reconstruction Finance Corporation) allowed for local taxes, schools, city and county.

Supervisor Bird reported all of California's congressional representatives contacted have expressed themselves in favor of such legislation.

LATER HOURS FOR LOCAL POST OFFICE

Lemon Grove Post Office plans to extend the hours of service for local patrons, says Postmaster Frenchy Faucher. Effective Friday, December 9, 1955, window service for mailings will be from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., daily except Sundays, until December 20. Sunday hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be no change in the money order service hours.

For added convenience, parcels are to be mailed right next door in the old bank location.

Patrons are urged to mail as soon as possible. All parcels going east of the Mississippi River are to be mailed by December 10 and those mailed west of the river by the 15th. All California mailings should be made before December 20. If you wish to mail after these dates, air mail or special delivery should be used to insure delivery before Christmas.

Christmas cards that are smaller than 2½ by 4¼ inches require 3c postage. Patrons should use 3c stamps for cards to insure delivery or return to you if not delivered. They can be sealed, and a letter included at the same price.

FIREMEN TO MARCH M. D. MONDAY, TUESDAY

The entire Lemon Grove Fire Department will march to raise funds for the San Diego County Muscular Dystrophy campaign on the nights of Monday and Tuesday, December 5 and 6.

Chief Harold Hensley said the 14-man department has volunteered to take the job of calling on each resident of Lemon Grove to solicit funds that will be used to fight the mystery disease.

In order to aid the firemen in their march on the nights of December 5 and 6, Chief Hensley asked that Lemon Grove residents put on their porch lights so the marchers will know they are welcome to call. Lights should be left on from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

"This is a cash contribution campaign," he said. "There are no pledges to sign and whatever any resident of Lemon Grove feels he can afford to give will be appreciated."

He explained the funds raised in San Diego County will go to further research to seek out the cause of the always-fatal disease and to give care to patients. Majority of the stricken are children from 3 to 13, and the number of cases in San Diego have been on the increase for the last several years, Hensley said.

Poor Turnout Distresses School Board as Important Items are Resolved

R. J. Hortie, San Diego contractor, was low bidder on the proposed four classroom addition at San Miguel School. The bid of $44,752, averaging about $8.50 per square foot, has been referred to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, and upon its approval work will begin on the addition. The Lemon Grove school board considered bids submitted by ten contractors at a special bid-opening meeting last week.

This Monday evening arrangements were made for a meeting with local PTA unit presidents concerning civil defense in the schools. The meeting is scheduled for January 5 at which time board members, presidents, and unit chairmen directly concerned with student welfare and safety will discuss possible plans for pupil protection and evacuation.

It was announced that the board of supervisors has set Tuesday, December 13, 2:30 p.m., as the date for the annexation hearings on the College Avenue area. Discussion showed that several subdivisions building or planned in this vicinity will soon face the question of whether to annex to the city or remain in the Lemon Grove School District.

For the benefit of school patrons, teachers from the junior high demonstrated and led discussions on three important areas of the seventh and eighth grade subjects. Mrs. Evelyn Whalen discussed mathematics, Harry Butler told about the social studies program, and Mrs. June Mason explained the English classes.

Oftentimes board meeting agendas must be concerned with policy making and occupied with site and supply purchasing. This regular business leaves little time for the review and study by members and patrons of actual teaching methods and subject material. For this reason the Lemon Grove board devotes a portion of the second meeting each month to some phase of the curriculum in the five district schools.

It is disappointing to educators to have such a small audience as was present Monday evening at the School Lane cafeteria. They can only trust that it is satisfaction and not indifference to their schools that causes the lack of participation at these school discussions. Next meeting of the board is Monday, December 12, 7:30 p.m. at the Education Center on Kempf and Lincoln Streets.

Helix Irrigation District Directors Disappoint Land Owners In El Cajon District

The meeting of irrigation district directors, held at the usual time and place on Nov. 22, with all directors present except President Levy, was attended by a larger number of customers than usual.

Mrs. Geo. McDonald, accompanied by several neighbors, was present to discuss status of her property, which is partly within and partly without the District's boundaries, located near Los Coches Road. (This Los Coches Road turns north off the highway at the foot of Tunnel Hill, leads to Lakeside.)

It developed that Mrs. McDonald came in to the office recently to apply for water service, and found that although she has been paying El Cajon District assessments, she is unable to get water to the portion of her property on which the home is located. Her property is in two separate parcels, and the bills showed that fact, but no attention was paid to the difference until the well went dry and need for water at the house arose. The house is on land outside the District, and therefore cannot be supplied.

Mrs. McDonald said they had voted for the water bonds and favored the annexation of their land to the District.

Attorney Jennings explained that their hope of getting water to the house was not possible under present agreement with the County Water Authority, which voted recently that they would accept no more land outside the District boundaries. "Property must be included in the Colorado River Authority to be eligible to supply from Helix District, because this District is short of water now and can't take on any more customers," was the way we understood his remarks.

This explanation disturbed Mrs. McDonald's friends, some of whom said their property was only 35 feet above the old flume line, and they had understood they were eligible. Mr. Jennings said the district took in only the former El Cajon Water District, and that there is no way for those outside the former district to get in. The El Cajon district has been disbanded.

Looks like the McDonalds and their neighbors are in hard luck.

Scott Watson, who owns a large tract in the vicinity, can't get water for the tract in sufficient quantity to subdivide, though he has a water right to "4 miner's inches." Mr. Shelton couldn't state offhand how much water that meant. A notation was made that fuller details would be given later. Mr. Jennings used to live in that section and at one time was familiar with the details of water ownership. The old flume co., forerunner of the irrigation district, sold water, a miner's inch of water measured under four inch pressure for $600—but miners' inches are out of the picture now, and the flume is no more.

Mrs. McDonald's complaint was the first on the agenda, with a total of 31 matters listed.

Warrants for a total of $28-955.70 were approved. Jim Squire, treasurer, got $17,568.32 and Wm. E. Van Meter $230, with 21 others for various amounts.

Ten resolutions were adopted authorizing notice of completion of Julian Avenue pipeline, right of way to S. D. Gas & Electric Co. over strip of land 50 feet in width, known as S. D. Flume Co.'s right of way in Lot 3, blk. 36 of S Tract, Rho El Cajon, and eight quitclaims of easement to various citizens in various localities.

Harold H. Lusk requested a ¾ inch meter to serve 13.70 acres on Arb. 1, Blk. 45, S Tract, Rho. El Cajon.

S. D. Gas & Electric Co. wants to pay $85 for an easement over portion of Lot 102 of El Cajon Valley Co.'s lands. The district directors thought $1 would be enough, didn't know what to do with the other $84. Another document will be made out.

Brokers' commission of 10% will be allowed on sales of district owned property in Monterey Heights. This commission will be divided equally between brokers if there are two interested parties, one bidding higher than the first bidder. Ask any real estate broker—D. H.

The Dimmer VIEW

By MAX GOODWIN

If anyone asks you what the biggest Lemon Grove improvement has been during the past three years tell 'em the Lemon Grove Junior Chamber of Commerce, and tell 'em I told you so.

The Junior Chamber is presently in the throes of getting itself chartered in Lemon Grove and it will consist of an undetermined number of determined young business men between the ages of 21 and 35 who have set civic leadership and civic improvement as their goal.

Tom Smith, Gasco employee who lives on Sweetwater Road, actuated the organization locally and he has done a workmanlike job of getting the thing thrown together. I assume that our Lemon Grove unit is going to be neither better nor worse than its many counterparts . . . and with that thought in mind, let me tell you of some of the advantages of having this band of resolute citizens in our midst.

First, the old town will slowly come to life. Old men who have sat around service clubs and in other groups, browbeating each other because of the lack of civic activity and community improvement (partially because there was no one to carry the ball), will suddenly find that not only are the ball carriers there, but the scorekeepers and gamenamers, too. Already, there are plans afoot for a traffic safety program, a community-wide event a la Mother Goose or Toyland parades and some others, and all this before the first formal meeting of the newly formed group.

Says Smith, "Junior Chamber work gives young business men a chance to express themselves on civic matters and presents an opportunity for them to get out and work on community projects."

Secondly, many persons who suffered an additional community work load because they belonged to service or social clubs will find they may now again devote their time to the things the charter of their club calls for. Some service clubs have taken on big community jobs because there was no other way of getting the jobs done. Others have stayed aloof and unhelpful. Each club can measure itself by examining its own past record. However, the necessity for refusal need not come again because the Junior Chamber will fill that huge niche.

Thirdly, Lemon Grove will not necessarily be embarrassed any more by a poor showing on money raising drives, such as United Success Drive, Red Cross and the like. Because we have attempted to fulfill quotas from catch-as-catch-can workers, the latter of which in most cases took the assignment simply because no one else could be horn-swoggled into it, our showing has been miserable. This is not to say there are not enough fund raising drives, either!

All told, it looks like a better community because of this energetic young group . . . and to some of the old war-horses who have almost worn their legs down to their knees, I say to you to welcome the Junior Chamber . . . and rest your weary bones . . . but not to the extent that you can't find time to lend a helping hand to this worthy group, when and if they ask for it.

That Rumbling Sound Ain't Your Stomach— It's Michael's Food Trucks

Food trucks rumbled to Michael's this week as preparations were being made for an expansion of the well-known Lemon Grove dining room.

The rumbling trucks were bearers of food, much of it to be free, at a huge smorgasbord scheduled for a late hour on the festive night.

Festive night has been set for tonight (Thursday) and a floor show, dancing, souvenirs, flowers and the tremendous, free smorgasboard are all part of the entertainment plans.

Entertainment plans will include a number of "surprise" features in addition to dancing and show, Henry Goldy, proprietor of Michael's, said. "But most of all, we are happiest about the big table we are going to open to our friends and guests about midnight."

Michael's is in its fourth year of operation and started with four employees. It now has 68, most of whom are Lemon Grove residents, Mrs. Goldy, personnel director, who is also associated with her husband at Michael's, said.

Hospital Cost Under Estimate Says Administrator

Cost of building and equipping Grossmont Hospital, including all project costs from purchase of the site through November 14, was $1,704,716, it was determined at the completion of the building audit by the Bureau of Hospitals and the State Controller's office last week.

The original estimate was for $2,054,300 and the approved budget was for $1,736,217.22. The budget had been adopted after building contracts had been received. Additional savings of $31,531 represents principally savings on equipment, Louis Peelyon, hospital administrator said.

The state audit determined that the portion of the project cost in which the state and Federal government will participate is $1,518,606. A portion of equipment and offsite portions of utility and sewer construction costs are not subject to government participation.

The hospital will receive a total of $943,740 in Federal funds, and the same amount from the State. This provides $1,087,480 of the cost, the balance coming from the $800,000 in bonds voted by the people of the District. The $1,704,716 project cost leaves $182,784 of the district's capital funds available for completion of street improvements approaching the hospital, and for other capital improvements, Peelyon said.

Interest and principal payments on the $800,000 bond issue are being made without any increase in the previously established district tax rate of 20 cents. The bond payments this year require approximately 12 cents of the 20 cent rate, Claude Dooley, hospital controller, said.

The total project cost per bed, based on "normal" number of beds—305—is $16,235.40, and the cost per square foot is $26.64. However, the cost per square foot of the building construction only is $21.40, and cost per bed is $13,042.22.

A survey made by the California Bureau of Hospitals indicates these per bed and per square foot costs are well under recent costs of similar "Class A" hospitals in California.

Building construction cost, including the general contract, architects and consultant's fees and supervision is $1,369,444.35.

Site cost, including soil study, land and site preparation is $47,183.35.

Cost of bringing water and sewer services to the hospital was $27,569.66.

Equipment and furniture—including fixed equipment, furniture and instruments and utensils was $260,539.23.

'Night in Las Vegas' Theme of Austin Guild Event

Something new in the way of entertainment will be featured at this season's first activity of the Austin Guild. On December 10 at 8 p.m., the guild presents "A Night in Las Vegas" in St. Patrick's hall, 30th and Dwight Streets. Significantly, a Las Vegas night will be a night of gambling for fun.

For a nominal admission fee, each guest will be provided with exhorbitant amounts of play money. Roulette wheels, dice games, blackjack, bingo and the like are the instruments of chance that will either increase the money provided or, in the common term of the gambler, "wipe 'em out."

At the termination of play, those lucky enough to be in the winning column will have an opportunity to bid on many prizes that will be offered in auction. Refreshments will be available.

On the committee for this event are Mrs. Donald Donnelly and Mrs. James Nash, co-chairmen; Mrs. Fred Meis, refreshments; Mrs. Joseph Riese, tickets; Mrs. Virginia G. Keane, publicity, with Rev. Donald L. Williams, O.S.A., moderator of the guild.

Among the more adept actresses are women who laugh heartily at their husbands' jokes.

LUKE BARBOUR HONORED

Luke W. Barbour of 3364 Helix Street, Spring Valley, past president of the SV Chamber of Commerce and assistant foreman in Plant 2 at Convair, was honored with a special award at the monthly Convair Management Club's meeting and dinner Wednesday, November 16 in the Conference Building, Balboa Park.

The club, with a membership of about 2,000, has been meeting each month for about four years. Each month one outstanding member is chosen for the "Mug of the Month." The person chosen must have outstanding work in his particular department at the plant and be recognized as a citizen of integrity in his own community. The award is actually a copper drinking mug with the receiver's picture, name, date and purpose of the award engraved on the side.

Barbour has been with Convair for nearly 15 years. His award was based on not only his plant work, but with his untiring work with the Managerial Club, which is affiliated with the National Association of Foremen.

The Managerial Club is sponsor of a group of high school youngsters who have set up their own business company. The company actually sells stock to get the capital to operate their business, and they declare dividends at the end of the year. The program is sweeping the country, being in many business firms. Luke Barbour for some time has been production manager and advisor for this particular group of youngsters.

The second half of the requirements which Luke passed is his community activities. Besides being past president of the Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce, he is one of the officers responsible for the construction of the Spring Valley Community Center, which is at present being completed by volunteer labor. And last, but not least, he has been quite active in church and youth work in Spring Valley. He is married and the father of three children.

The Spring Valley BULLETIN and the Lemon Grove REVIEW salute Luke Barbour, truly an outstanding citizen.

Young business men between the ages of 21 and 35 who join between now and December 7 will be charter members, Smith said.

Spring Valley 63 Years Ago

By DICK HENDERSON

We have a bound volume of Encinitas Transcript, written in Encinitas and printed in San Diego by E. N. Sullivan, who published several weekly papers in his Economy Print Shop at what is now Third and Broadway, then numbered 1111 D street, near the city hall.

This bound volume dates from March 5, 1892 to March 25, 1892.

This reporter well remembers looking into this office when he was 10 or 12 years old, "the only steam printing plant in San Diego." The steam part came from the boiler that furnished the power via belt to run the presses. Much of said power from the right hind leg of the press feeders, who "kicked 'em off" at 1000 an hour when they became expert. Quite a difference from the modern self-feeders, that pick 'em up, place in proper position, print 'em and deliver them on the pile, the press requiring no attention except having stock replaced on the feed board.

The Encinitas Transcript was successor to Encinitas Journal, and was edited by J. A. Rogers, later by J. A. and S. S. Rogers, husband and wife). J. A. Rogers was a minister.

The paper had correspondents from various parts of the county, or else Publisher Sullivan picked up items from other papers he published and printed them. It was a tough game in those days to get material for a weekly paper, but Sullivan did a good job. (About 1897 this reporter was Lakeside correspondent for El Cajon Valley News, which Sullivan had added to his string.) We had bound volumes of other Sullivan publications, but gave them to Serra Museum a few months ago, after having guarded them for 25 years.

We can find no reference to Lemon Grove in this particular volume of the Transcript, but Spring Valley seems to have had a correspondent. E. R. Buck, who sent in copy regularly. Incidentally, E. R. Buck was the parent of Lettie Buck Porterfield, a well known singer in San Diego in the nineties and later. Her husband, W. H. Porterfield, was my first boss when he was circulation manager of the San Diego Sun, and I was a carrier. Later, Porterfield was editor of the Sun, which was absorbed by the Evening Tribune some years ago.

The issue of November 19, 1892 of the Transcript, under heading "Spring Valley Sparks," carried the following:

"Weather for the past week, warm with cool nights.—N. S. Binkley is home from San Bernardino where he attended the funeral of his mother. He brought with him the seed of a new kind of wallnut which he will plant—Miss Reynolds and Miss Horton spent Saturday and Sunday in San Diego—The Y. P. S. C. E. had a missionary meeting Sunday evening. Rev. J. W. Harwood gave an interesting talk on missionary work in Japan. E. R. B."

(Yep, that's the way they printed items in those days, just ran 'em in. Saved space and type-setting expense).

A week later, November 26, 1892, "Spring Valley Sparks" said "Weather for the past six weeks cool, but no signs of frost —Mrs. S. M. Wheeler is seriously ill—Mr. Bancroft is plowing a large piece of land for grain—Rain is needed—Mr. Prentice has nearly recovered from her recent illness. (The compositor forget to put the S in Mrs.)—Mr. Prentice shipped 15 boxes of limes Tuesday to San Diego commission merchants. E. R. B."

We thought you folks in Spring Valley would be interested to learn that the weather in November 63 years ago was about the same as this present year. Lovely warm days, cool nights, no frost as yet, no rain either.

M.V. Tax Payers Issue Questions on Sewer Installations

The Mountain Valley Taxpayers Association last week sent out cards to many of the Spring Valley residents with questions to be asked should someone call regarding sewer laterals. Thirteen questions in all and one statement comprised the card.

To all this, Gilbert Ray, head of the Citizens for Sewers, had this to say: "As far as I am concerned the people of Spring Valley voted in the bonds for sewers and are signing up for the 1911 Act."

Hospital Auxiliary Officers to Be Installed

By MARY LANDESCO

The Women's Auxiliary of Grossmont Hospital will hold its final meeting of the year on Friday, December 9. According to Mrs. J. Forster Couts, president, this will be the organization's official annual meeting—a general meeting that will be held at 7:30 p.m., in La Mesa Elementary School's all purpose room, 8100 Orange Avenue, La Mesa.

Five officers-elect, who will administer the affairs of the auxiliary during 1956—Mmes. Jens Hutchens, president; Duval Ellery, vice president; D. V. Stovall, treasurer; Elmer J. Drew, financial secretary; and A. L. Ballantyne, recording secretary — will be installed by the retiring president, Mrs. Couts. The nine area chairmen, who have been elected by their respective areas, will also be installed by Mrs. Couts.

A social evening will follow a brief business meeting, at which the highlights of the auxiliary's year will be reviewed. Refreshments will be served by the hostess groups of volunteers, led by Mmes. Duval Ellery and Rupert Linley.

Members of the hospital district board, hospital administrator Louis Feelyon and staff, hospital public relations counsel Carlyle Reed, other friends of the hospital and guests of individual members are being invited.

Auxiliary members and others in the district who are familiar with her contribution to the common cause, will regret the retirement of Mrs. Couts as auxiliary president, after three years of dedicated service in that office. She has been "guide, philosopher, and friend" to all associated with her, during the trying formative years, and her influence will be reflected in the auxiliary's achievements throughout the years to come.

WOMEN'S VOGUES PLAN CHRISTMAS PARTY

The regular business meeting of the Vogue Section, Lemon Grove Woman's Club, will be held in the clubhouse Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Plans for the annual Christmas party will be discussed, Mrs. William Hubbard, president, urges all members to attend.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Lionel Thorogood and Mrs. Werner Schmack.

Mrs. Lewis Reed was the lucky winner of a 22-pound turkey at the club's turkey drawing. Proceeds from the drawing are to be used for the Christmas welfare project. Mrs. Kenneth Clarke, welfare chairman, says some elderly people in county homes will have a happier Christmas.

A day, even one hour, of virtuous liberty is worth a whole eternity of bondage.

I'm Going to Be an Editorial Writer

By BOB TURNBULL

Having written for the Lemon Grove Review off and on (mostly on) since I was a peagreen freshman at Grossmont High School I have encountered many interesting experiences via journalism.

I have passed through most of my "growing pains" of an adolescent (having turned 19 two Mondays ago), I have benefited from the words of wisdom and encouragement from the Review's fiery editor and publisher known to all as "just plain Max" and think that I'm starting to attain the style of writing I'd like to carry with me, whether I further my journalistic pursuits or wind up writing love letters from some muddy foxhole deep in some jungle unknown.

It was just a spek under a year ago I was promoted to teenage editor, a title that will have its shortcomings in just one tenth of a decade. Occasionally Max asked me to proofread something a teener has turned in or I may write a special story, edit some copy, but mainly become a general nuisance at press time.

But the time has at last presented itself to my imaginative little head where I have the urge to turn editorialist, weekly at that. I would like to really become serious on some very pressing matters that I see through my eyes and heart. What I'll write in the future won't be from a youngster's or oldster's point of view, but my own as a teenager, just like I am.

I'd like to tackle such articles as the reason why the Heartland Players theatrical group of Lemon Grove doesn't have large crowds (a sort of story behind the story); explain where a lot of your money goes for football gate receipts; discuss the "weak" road conditions of the county; tell you some interesting true-life experiences on how several supposed "top" new and used car lots are snobbish to the young people; write a succinct editorial on young people and their relation with church; explain the constitutions behind our local colleges' fraternities and sororities; delve lightly into the subject of juvenile delinquency; expose the real reason why the Musicians Union, at one time, disapproved of the Maytime Band Review; interview our local police (?) and ask him some questions always in everyone's mind, and many other topics as arise.

Your comments, suggestions, ideas or constructive criticisms will be greatly appreciated by either writing to me in care of the Review office or through the letters to the editor. Thank you and we'll be seeing each other next week.

$13 Takes Child Off Waiting List

Every $13.10 given to the United Success Drive will now take a child off the waiting list, Earl W. Smart Jr., Lemon Grove community chairman, said yesterday.

He urged all late contributors to mail their contributions to the Community Chest, P. O. Box 2671, San Diego 12.

Smart explained that after the drive had reached the $1,408,000 mark, it could continue services on their present level, but that $327,450 was needed to increase services to the point where there will be no waiting list. This amounts to $13.10 for each of the 25,000 children who want to join Red Feather youth groups.

Smart pointed out that the Camp Fire Girls alone have a waiting list of 150 in Lemon Grove and 50 in Spring Valley, while the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts have a similar situation.

The United Success Drive this week reported a total of $1,514-568 for 47.2 per cent of its goal. Lemon Grove's contributions reached $3330.00 for 23.4 per cent of its quota, and Spring Valley had $810 for 17.1 per cent.

26 Baptist Churches In Mobilization

Next Tuesday evening at seven o'clock the men of the Brotherhood Organization of the First Baptist Church of Lemon Grove will have their wives as special guests at their monthly dinner meeting. The menu has been planned by the men and the food will also be prepared by them. A special program has been arranged for this occasion.

Monday night a caravan of cars will proceed from the local Baptist Church to the Highland Avenue Baptist Church in National City to take part in a special mobilization night. Twenty-six Southern Baptist Churches of this area will participate. It is expected that 500 people will attend this meeting.

It isn't so much that a man becomes wiser and better as he grows older as it is that he just doesn't feel like acting the fool.

SANTA TO VISIT WITH VLM PTA

Arrangements were made with Santa to visit Vista La Mesa school children, when the executive board of the Vista La Mesa Parent-Teacher Association met November 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nelson, 3901 Marian St., with Mrs. Kenneth Ferris as co-hostess.

Santa's visit will take place December 16. He will visit each classroom and each pupil will receive a small gift. This is an annual event arranged by the unit for the children in the school. Mrs. Edward Joerns, hospitality chairman, is in charge of the arrangements for the party.

There were reports by committee chairmen, discussion of the December meeting and other routine business handled, Mrs. R. C. Alexander, president, announced.

Since this was the last meeting of the executive board in 1955, the social part of the evening was in the form of a Christmas party. "Cy" Metzner, recreation chairman, led the group in several games. They were of both mental and physical nature and created a large amount of amusement.

An exchange of gifts was the highlight of the evening's entertainment. The gifts were placed in the center of the floor and each person given a number. The corresponding numbers were then drawn, and as they were called the one having the number had their choice of the wrapped gifts.

There being only two male members of the executive board, this of course led to some merriment. Clarence Allen, principal, says that he finds the red earrings he received most becoming, and Seymour Metzner was heard to remark, "Oh well, I've needed a new lipstick for some time."

However, what everyone is waiting for now is to see the female member of the board smoking the cigars that "Cy" bought.

The advancement and award ceremony was conducted by the new assistant cubmaster, Harvey Pore. New Bobcats welcomed into the pack were Jimmy Arsenault in Den 4 and David Owen in Den 2. Den 8, Mrs. Mae Skinner, den mother, was awarded the achievement flag for the most achievements done by the boys during the past month, as well as the attendance flag for the most parents present at the pack meeting. Robert Wilber, Cubmaster, presented one year service pins to the boys, and C. W. Skinner, committee chairman, presented one year pins to the committee.

The Thanksgiving skit, portraying Pilgrims and Indians having a Thanksgiving feast, was pantomimed by Den 6, Mrs. Bonnie Foote, den mother, accompanied by Den 8 singing "Come Ye Thankful People, Come."

In keeping with the Thanksgiving theme, Cub Pack 318 has chosen for their community project a needy family. They were given a complete Thanksgiving dinner by committeeman Earl Gable, representing the pack. To close the meeting, Den 3, Mrs. Marg Heath, den mother, sang "God Bless America," as pictures drawn by the den were unrolled to illustrate the words of the song.

Refreshments were served by the parents of Den 1 and Den 8.

DON'T DRY YOUR WASH ON THE FURNACE

The Lemon Grove Fire Department extends a word of caution to the householder. Now that the cold damp weather is here we are faced with heater fires.

The sirens you have been hearing lately are the fire engines responding to homes with faulty floor or wall heaters. With the rains here, people have a tendency to dry clothes in the house. Please do not attempt to do this over any type of heater.

The San Diego Gas Company will check faulty heaters and there is no charge for this service and they can let you know what has to be done to correct the fault. With this thought in mind we of the Lemon Grove fire department wish you Fire-Free holidays.

SACRAMENT TO BE OBSERVED AT TRINITY

Trinity Presbyterian Church will observe the Sacrament of The Lord's Supper next Sunday, December 4 at both services.

Cub Scout Pack 171 of Trinity met Friday with 53 parents present. Cubmaster Larry Armbrust presented Mrs. Ed Davis, den mother for Den 2, who furnished the entertainment for the evening.

SEVEN CONFIRMED AT ST. PHILIP'S CHURCH

There was a large congregation for evensong and the holy rite of Confirmation at St. Philip's last Sunday. The Rt. Reverend Donald Campbell, Suffragan Bishop, confirmed seven candidates from St. Philip's, and candidates from three neighboring parishes.

It's what a worker does, not what he is capable of doing, that shows in the record of achievement.

Maybe he will explain why you didn't get that letter you were expecting.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lorenzen have bought the home at 2752 New Jersey. Daughter Sandra, 4, and son Joe, 2, make things lively around the house. Mr. Lorenza is a teacher in La Mesa. The family came here from Lakeview, Oregon, have a '55 Ford station wagon, and their phone number is HO 9-5632. Call that number and give 'em a welcome.

PICTURE TALK

By BOB VAUGHT

Christmas has truly become a "season" rather than a "day." Christmas really begins where Thanksgiving leaves off, and December 25 is the climax to weeks of anticipation and planning.

To make a picture story of Christmas as complete and true to life as possible, now's the time to list some of the scenes you'll want to be sure of recording . . . addressing cards, Junior's letter to Santa, wrapping gifts, the postman delivering packages, bringing home the tree and decorating it, and many more. And then, of course, there will be plenty of picture subjects Christmas Day.

Robert Vaught is a veteran in the photographic business. He presently operates a local camera shop.—Editor.

Be sure your camera is in A-1 working order because you certainly don't want to ruin any Christmas pictures. See that the lens and the inside of your camera are clean. Use a soft brush or lint-free cloth. Be sure the batteries in your flashholder are fresh. It would be wise to get new ones now. If you've had some trouble with your camera, you'd better take in in to your local camera store and have it checked over. Usually there's no charge for this service.

The Tartan staff plans to sell at least 1600 Tartans.

First National Bank Opening Draws 3,500 on Misty, Moisty Day

It was a gloomy, rainy day for any kind of a grand opening, but 3,500 people lined the lobby of the new building of Lemon Grove's First National Bank to partake of cookies and hot, steaming coffee, and pass compliments.

The opening, held on Monday, November 21, was replete with ceremonies as Lemon Grove's "Queen," 17-year-old Janice Jewett, presided, cut the ribbon which permitted spectators and well wishers to enter, and served as hostess.

Most of the opening day visitors were stuck with the beauty and spaciousness of the $300,000 plant which occupies the southeast corner of Imperial and Golden. The building has four times the area of the former location and boasts many Lemon Grove innovations.

For the first time, pointed out Jack Koop, manager and vice president, Lemon Grove business men may enjoy worry free nights because of the new night depository. This, Koop said, was a protected service under bank control and covered by insurance.

"We worried, too, for many years because of our business men having to take their receipts home with them, but that worry is over forever," Koop said.

Bruce Harms, assistant manager, said the 90 car parking lot and the speed-line drive-in service had met with instant approval among bank customers.

"We are averaging 48 cars a day in the drive-in line and the service is only one week old," Harms said.

Officials of the bank said that the opening was entirely successful. "We opened 49 new accounts the first day," one said.

In addition to the greater lobby space, greater numbers of windows, more personnel and greater privacy, help came to those who have been on the deposit box waiting list. For the first time, the waiting list, usually containing about 50 names, will be done away with.

First National banking, with all of its meaning, has come to Lemon Grove, bank officials stated.

Betty Petree, teller at one of the 18 windows at the First National Bank, attends first depositor in the new building, Glenn Woodward, operator of the Lemon Grove Laundromat at 7857 Broadway.

KIWANIANNES TO MEET EARLIER THIS MONTH

At their December meeting date, the Lemon Grove Kiwanianes have chosen Monday, December 5, which is two weeks earlier than their regular third Monday of the month date. The place will be the home of Mrs. Byron Netzley, 2324 Golden Avenue; the hour, 8 p.m. Mmes. Harmon Russell, Jack Durham and Harold Hensley will be co-hostesses.

Holding the Christmas meeting at the Netzley's follows the group's custom for the four years since its founding; and the social portion of the evening will be somewhat of a tradition likewise. Members have been asked, as in the past, to bring along gift-wrapped packages containing "white elephants" or other secret items. The route by which each item reaches its final owner is a fun-making procedure. It provided lots of merriment at two previous Christmas meetings, and no member who has attended one of these affairs will willingly miss another.

A new member, Mrs. Bud Andersen, was introduced at the November meeting in the home of Mrs. S.-C. Brumbaugh Jr. A guest whom the members were also glad to see and welcome was Mrs. J. T. Warburton, past president. Her husband is the new principal of Grossmont High School.

S D & A E Engineer Exonerated in Accident When Auto Stalls on Track

The engineer on a Lemon Grove R. R. on a train running between San Diego and Calexico has a nerve-racking job. (This is actually the S. D. & Arizona R. R.) Mexican nationals are even more careless about stopping on the track than are Americans, but when an engineer on a line in Mexico hits and injures a Mexican national the Mexican authorities step in right now and hold an investigation.

Last Friday p.m. Engineer Marshall, who lives at 2046 Linnet street, Encanto, was herding his engine with 48 cars coming along, when rounding a curve just outside Tijuana he saw an auto three car lengths ahead, with a man, wife and two children, stalled on the track. Marshall slapped on the emergency but too much weight forced the engine into the stalled auto, and the coupling on the front over the "cowcatcher" hooked onto the auto and carried it along the track for six car lengths before the train stopped. The Mexican man was badly injured, died the next day, and one of the children suffered a concussion which may have proved fatal.

The immediate investigation by Mexican authorities exonerated the train crew of responsibility, but Engineer Marshall was worried for a while. The Mexicans don't fool around after an accident of that kind. Usually the engineer goes to jail till the matter is cleared up. That was why Marshall's wife was worried when informed of the accident and told friends she had to go to Tijuana to see her husband in jail.

Railroad officials reported to the REVIEW that Marshall had been exonerated from responsibility, but did not say the victim had died, nor did they mention the child's injuries.

The S D and Arizona is the same road that runs trains through Lemon Grove occasionally, blowing its own horn too long and too loud and ringing a little bell. The bell is on the engine. The R R runs through Mexico from Tijuana to Jacumba.—D. H.

With windshield wipers fanning furiously, a drive in patron tries the new service which permits banking without leaving the family auto. A parking lot in connection with the bank accommodates 90 cars.

Begonia Society To Have Christmas Dinner

San Miguel Begonia Society will have a Christmas dinner December 12 at 6:30 in the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall in Lemon Grove. Albert Henderson, vice president, is giving this dinner to members, with guests paying a donation of $1.25.

A Christmas dinner basket will be packed for a deserving family, and those attending are asked to bring food, or money to purchase a turkey.

A Christmas garden gift exchange is our old custom. Reservations to be made with Mr. Henderson, HO 6-3696 by December 8.

HERE IS A GOOD COUGH REMEDY—EASY TO TAKE, TOO

Dean Herrick, 3819 El Canto Drive, Spring Valley, gave us this prescription for a cough. He heard this reporter coughing over the phone and said the remedy he found very effective was "equal part of cod liver oil and canned milk."

"Shake well and put a little on the end of tongue, work it around the mouth and every time you swallow the throat gets a little of the mixture. It is not unpleasant and after three days the irritation is gone, along with the cough."

This remedy has been used for a long time, and if it doesn't work for you, let us know and we'll buy you a can of canned milk at Mayfair. Only one can to a customer, however.—D. H.

Unmarried, he devotes most of his time to his mother and family. RIFLE MATCHES TO BE HELD

SAN DIEGO — Civilian and military high-power rifle shooters in five states will be attracted to the Camp Matthews (San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot) Open Matches on Dec. 9, 10 and 11.

The annual competition, usually held at Camp Pendleton, will be held this year at Camp Matthews, the Recruit Depot's rifle range, located 12 miles north of San Diego on Highway 101.

Programs have been sent to organizations in Texas, New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona and California. Entries close Dec. 3 and will be limited to 400 individuals. Practice firing is set for Dec. 9. The remaining two days will be devoted to match firing.

Two divisions will be open for individual and team contests. Awards will be given in each division to the two categories. Division "A" is for NRA Match Rifles and Division "B" for service rifles.

The San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot Rod 'n Gun Club will be the administrative agency for the Camp Matthews Open High Power Rifle Match, but information is available by writing to Rance S-3 Officer, Weapons Training Battalion, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego 42.

Information by telephone may be obtained by calling Capt. W. A. Thompson, GLencourt 4-4251, extension 80.

A Marine spokesman said the event is not a National Rifle Association affair and pointed out that the change in firing site was necessary because of activities of Marines at the Camp Pendleton Base.

Awards in both divisions will include merchandise prizes for individual shooting and trophies and medals for team achievement.

Prizes to individuals will be 30.06 rifles, 10-X shooting coats, gun cases, rifle scopes, picknicker sets and hunting knives.

A permanent trophy will go to first place teams in each division as well as individual medals to team members. Second and third place teams will be awarded individual silver and bronze medals.

Quarters and meals are available at the rifle range for civilian and military male shooters. No quarters will be provided for non-shooters or women, but adequate civilian lodging is available within a reasonable distance of the range.

Names 504 Movie Stars In 2 Hours

Naming in two hours 504 movie actors and actresses, past and present, won a contest for Mansur Adil, a high school student in Manisa, Turkey. Young Adil also won the privilege of attending the local movie theater free of charge as often as he wishes during the year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tehran, Iran
Sunday, Oct. 30, 1955

Dear Editor:

I promised to get a line off to you when I got settled over here and finally am just about that except for more household effects to arrive which were shipped from Lemon Grove in May so you see there is a time element to settle down. My wife and I lived out of suitcases from June to October in motels, hotels, one room apartments, living room couches, etc., so we are happy to have a place of our own once again. Living here is just like moving back 100 years but at the same time with many modern conveniences. We are in a city of about 800,000 people, but only a few have anything at all and the rest are paupers. Where else in a city this size could you see camel trains loafing down the street, herds of goats going along, and sheep and flocks of ducks being driven along? People are continuously asking you for "Bakhseesh" which is the word for "gift" and one has to yell "Burrow" or "move along."

I especially thought of you tonight on my way over here to the office for a night of duty, after having received several of your papers and reading your letters and editorials of squawks about moving into your new office bushing. First off, my wife and I really enjoy the paper but I wish you would wrap a wider piece of paper around it for mailing as it takes about six weeks to two months to arrive and really gets beat up on the 12,000 mile journey. The reason I thought of you was first of all the water situation. Here the regular water comes only down from the mountains in open ditches called jubes, and, of course, those people at the edge of the mountains get fresh water for the further it comes, the dirtier it gets. Natives wash clothes and themselves in the jubes. I've seen both humans and animals depositing waste materials in the jubes. I just thought how I would like for you to see that. We don't use jube water for that very reason and our situation might interest you. We buy our water by the truckload and when they deliver it, it is pumped into an umber under our house and we use this for baths and laundry. Then we keep a 20 gallon can in the kitchen which we draw from for drinking and cooking after we either boil or place pills in it; so you can see that water is a bit of a problem. As for electricity, we are on 200 voltage, cycling anywhere from 10 to 100 and you never know if the lights are on or off. We use 220 volt bulbs, but for electric appliances we must use transformers; so we lug them all over the house, depending upon which appliance you want to use and one doesn't realize how we depend on those appliances until you hit a situation like this and carrying three transformers here and there gets a bit tedious. Oh yes, and during this month our lights were off completely for about 13 nights, so out came the kerosene lamps and thank heavens I have a Coleman lantern. We had to buy a kerosene cook stove here as mine arrived in terrible shape and the wrong kind anyway; so had to pay $65 for a stove here that I could get in Lemon Grove, taxes and all for $29! Also we use kerosene for heating and these houses are Mexican style with high ceilings, so it's back to the good old days of warm sweaters, pajamas and bathrooms. Oh yes, and on your delay in getting into your new office, it took us just five weeks after finding a house here to move in and all they had to do was paint five rooms, but with these people it is "farda" meaning "tomorrow" and you hear that word so often you want to scream. They siesta every day from 1 to 4 and their Sunday (Moslem) is on Friday and the Armenian Sunday is on Saturday with ours as usual; so it is a mess getting squared away on which day you can shop where. My only point in the above is that I have found out that we in America are spoiled silly and being a Lemon Grove home owner want you to tell the folks there that it is not only the best town in the U. S. but the whole damn world.

The only bad part here is the living which we are almost used to and have acclimated ourselves to. The duty is very good for I have a nice 27 passenger plane to fly, a good crew and make some nice trips though again it is not like flying in the good old U. S. with radio ranges etc. Here we just wait for a clear day and fly by landmarks which are strictly sand dunes and have had some hairy times especially at night. Since September I have been to Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, India, Oman, Iraq, up over the Caspian Sea near the Russian border, and this Friday I fly to Cairo, Lebanon, Damascus, Tripoli, Athens and to Naples, Italy; so am seeing quite a bit of the world. On these trips do find a lot of curios so will come home with all kinds of stuff.

Rent, electricity, water and kerosene run me around $130 a month which isn't bad but if I were a native would get it for half the price. Other things to compensate a lot. For instance, I pay 30 rials or 35 cents for a haircut, five rials for a shoeshine, ten rials for a car wash and many things are very cheap. We buy a lot of native foods like vegetables, fruits and meats, but everything must be sterilized before eating.

We are foreigners here, so must be careful in our actions, especially being in the U. S. Embassy, and there have been times already that I've been spit on as have the women though I suspect the spitters are a commie blend of which there are many since we are only 60 miles from the border. You don't look at the women here at all and it would do no good anyway for they all wear shedorahs which are long veils and down in Arabia they even wear leather masks with only a hole for the nose and two for the eyes. Was down in Shiraz, Iran a week or so ago and saw the ruins of the ancient capital Persopolis of the world which was ruled by Xerces and Darius in the ancient Persian days. Also while there, saw a public flogging which is the punishment for drunks, minor thievery, etc. They have it in public and two men hold the culprit down while a third one wields the whip. After 50 lashes, I would think a person would stay off the bottle for life for they have to carry them away.

There are several places to go though nothing like the clubs at home. We do have a nice club of our own and movies every night which are old, but after three years of tv we haven't seen any of them anyway so they are new to us. Oh yes, 'Max, with no tv and only one radio station on five hours a day we also have gotten back to the old days of just plain visiting friends and being able to talk or play cards without having to change channels on tv which I do not miss one bit. Another item of interest is that we must buy food in a four month supply which is how often I fly down to a commissary in Arabia and pick up things such as sugar, flour, canned goods, meat, etc. We made a run last week and got about $3000 worth so you can see we haul a load. We have one room that is nothing but shelves for food and have a $400 supply in so with the local market, can last for a spell.

Another item of good interest is that Old Crow here is $2.10 and Canadian Club is $1.65, so you can see that there are compensations. Also uniforms are not worn here; so I am practically a civilian and what better way to spend my last two years in the Navy before retirement?

We are at 3900 feet and so far haven't needed heat but a couple nights and the weather is all around pretty fine after you once get used to the altitude. The duck hunting is fine and also we get ibex and gazelle both of which are fine eating. Next month hope for some bear hunting.

Know this is a long letter and you can't print it all, but if there are any of the portions you can use I'd be glad for you to and to hear from you. We are quite comfortable and like the country fine though my main point to you and the folks at home is that there is NO place like home and NO place as fine as Lemon Grove. Keep plugging, Max, I've watched you and your paper for over three years and I'm convinced that you are strictly for the good and welfare of our town and I'm behind you 100% so get those people tossed out who are feathering their own nest and I'll help all I can when I come home. Give my best regards to Judge Hussey and Henry Goldy and the rest and let me know if there is anything you want from here. The brass work is cheap and nice and I can get a beautiful evening bag and belt in silver for five bucks.

Best regards,
Curly Simons

P. S. I watch the ads all the time for some free item I've won and will claim it when getting home!

Dear Curley:

Tom Ballestieri says you're in free at his Club Lido. That's at 7252 Broadway down near Massachusetts. Lido's is a pizzaria and Tom says you and Mrs. Simmons will be served all you can eat . . . until you call "stop".

The Editor

Dear Editor:

Had I realized that the little note that I sent you last week along with some clippings was going to appear in print I would have attempted to make my position a little clearer.

My disappointment in your previous editorial criticizing the welfare department stemmed from my personal hope that you were looking into the situation and would be coming up with an article giving your readers the other side of the story which two of the San Diego newspapers have certainly not done.

Lest I appear to be defending prostitutes who are collecting welfare funds for themselves and their children, illegitimate or otherwise, we should all understand that it is our civic duty to report any such cases to the proper legal authorities.

Critics should understand that only the probation department can remove children from their own homes (and at considerably more cost to the county). The aid-to needy children division of the welfare department are constantly referring more cases of this nature to the probation department than that department is able or willing to process.

It is my personal opinion that if every child living in an "immoral situation" in San Diego County were removed from his present environment we could never house them and the cost to the taxpayer would skyrocket!

I am willing to admit that there are weak spots in the dispensing of public funds, but I am equally sure that this weakness is not in the administration or performance at the department of public welfare, but a combination of lack of understanding of the complete picture by the general public, poor cooperation from certain legal authorities and surely the low pay scale which creates a shortage of experienced case workers and the resulting overburdened caseloads.

If my "heart bleeds" it is neither for the prostitutes or those accused of "giving away" our tax money, but for all of the children involved in these situations who will suffer as a result of the present misunderstanding.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Howard W. Kohler

Dear Mrs. Kohler:

Basically I suppose we are talking about the same thing . . . my right to express an opinion . . . as you do yours.

There is no law against prostitutes receiving welfare aid. Don Keller, San Diego County prosecuting attorney, told me yesterday that the only time "immorality is a condition for being removed from the relief rolls is when there is evidence that such action is indicative of other income."

That's the law, ma'am, and neither you nor I can make a change in it. I'll still stand on my original premise of resenting my tax dollar being used for the support of prostitutes. Theory behind this reasoning is my unwillingness to knowingly aid and abet a house of ill repute. I believe that a woman smart enough to trap an innocent male into an act that results in fatherhood should be equally adept at being able to support the product of her wrongdoing.

The Editor

Dear Editor:

My husband and I were sorry to miss you when we stopped in at the Review office to pick up tickets for "two wonderful dinners at Pal's Cafe," after finding my name among the ads in the November 10 Lemon Grove Review.

We want to express our thanks to you, our host, and to say that they really were "two wonderful dinners" (we had Porterhouse steaks), and enjoyed them immensely in Pal's charming little dining room.

Sincerely yours
Margaret L. Hilton
8250 Skyline Dr.

Dear Mrs. Hilton:

Thank Ted Fetters, not me. He not only supplies the meals but he pays for the ad by which you were invited. He says he profits in the long run because the diner always returns. I gave him your letter and both he and I appreciate having gotten your nice "thank you" note.

The Editor

Dear Sir:

Week before last, I sent in a check to subscribe to your paper.

It arrived, with the incorrect address, Orange Street instead of Grange Street.

My second copy, for last week, didn't arrive at all, so I phoned last Saturday, giving proper address.

Today, I received my second copy, two mistakes in name, and wrong number, (264 instead of 2684). There is an "H" in Esther, and and E at the end of Sharpe, both were missing.

What gives?

Esther G. Sharpe
2664 Grange Street

Dear Mrs. Sharpe: Would you believe me when I say that some days things just don't go right?

The Editor

Dear Editor:

I have an idea or two on "How to get along with your neighbors."

Last month I gave my neighbor's son a small tool chest for his birthday. It looked like the type of gift to appeal to a nine year old boy and the salesclerk assured me it was ideal. It did and it was. Before he had reached the age of nine years and one day he had sawed the leg off his father's sawhorse, pounded a few nails into his mother's favorite avocado tree, and chiseled a bit out of the dining table leg. As he was planing the top of the television his mother suddenly had a wonderful idea based on reciprocity.

Last week my son received a complete set of fingerpaints on his birthday. I want to state positively that "washable" fingerpaints do not wash off.

Gladys Gardner
Spring Valley

Dear Editor:

As per our 11 a.m. talk, do please try to get this in your paper this week.

Give out an invitation to all Christian mothers (and those with love in their hearts for children, even if not mothers) to attend the meeting of Christian Mothers United 7 p.m. Friday at the Veterans Memorial Building in Balboa Park (South of Roosevelt Junior High School) and help us snowball this thing into an avalanche.

We've been told the "Hand that rocks the cradle rules the word." OK—Let's at least try and lift the load off the men in government we put in office.

Reporters will be welcome—Major Angel, Salvation Army (I hope) will give the invocation—and we hope with God's help, to really be of help, not only to our boys and girls—but the U. S. A.

Carol Sperry
4538 Alta Lane
La Mesa, Calif.

Dear Mr. Fixit:

In regards to the complaint about my water meter noise, and the report that you received from Mr. Friedgen. This report is absolutely true. In fact I was in the street and witnessed the work being done. After they had installed the one inch copper service and dresser coupling the noise still prevailed. Finally by installing two new meters the noise had stopped. This determination on the part of the water company can be credited to the fact that you had done an excellent job in taking care of my complaint. Thanking you for your troubles and forever grateful for the silence in my home.

Yours truly
Darrell Zoworski

We aim to please, Madam.

William Fixit

Dear Editor:

In looking over the date of my subscription of the Lemon Grove Review, I find that my time expires November 11, 1955. Please let it expire.

Yours truly,
A. R. Boese
Box 193, Lemon Grove

P. S. Thank you. Good luck to you in a dead village.

Dear Reader:

Sometimes progress whizzes past so fast that we think we are alone in an empty sea of nothingness. I hope this didn't happen to you and your variety store. Our population grows, we have more schools, more churches, more business firms and more homes. If the village is dead the pulse is still strong and healthy sounding.

Good luck to you and may the next village you choose be, in your opinion, a live one.

The Editor

Dear Editor:

I am about to resume my duties as manager of special activities for Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation, and wish to send you this note of thanks and appreciation for the newspaper support rendered by the LEMON GROVE REVIEW and the SPRING VALLEY BULLETIN during my assignment as Heartland division loan executive for the 1955 United Success Drive.

Although it now appears unlikely that Lemon Grove, Spring Valley or the Heartland division can achieve this year's fund-raising quotas, I do not consider my three months of effort wasted. The experience has resulted in my meeting a number of new friends and interesting people in all parts of the Heartland, and I hope I've been able to make a small, favorable impression on some of them in behalf of the Community Chest.

I hope you will continue to support editorially the still active United Success Drive in the Heartland area, Max, and give those volunteers still in the field a chance to make the best possible showing. They certainly deserve the thanks and respect of the entire community for their hard, and sometimes thankless, volunteer efforts.

Sincerely,
Fred E. Hamlin

Dear Editor:

Please clarify the following statement, "Take Our Children off the Waiting List." On a tv program, it showed a boy and girl, one waiting to become a Boy Scout, the other a Girl Scout.

Many years ago we had very active Girl Scout, Boy Scout, and Camp Fire Girl groups. With Mrs. Chase I helped sponsor the Camp Fire Girls and my son was a scout under Mr. Meadow's leadership. To my knowledge no one waited for Community Chest funds, interested parents and sponsors just organized. Why is it impossible to do this today?

Yours truly,
Beatrice L. Morse

Dear Mrs. Morse:

Let's face it! They didn't even have Social Security when we were kids. Now everybody gets good done to them whether it's good for them or not. No, I don't know why it's impossible to do this today.

The Editor

Dear Editor:

November 12, 8:35 p.m.
Barking dog
Speeding car
Sound of a bump
Increased acceleration

This, in short, was the orphaning of seven, two-and-a-half-weeks-old puppies. She was one of three dogs, who, due to the vagaries of nature, had to suffice for the children we couldn't have.

To us they represented the other children on Ensenada Street in Lemon Grove. They could have easily been one of the neighbors' children instead of our "little mother."

So, people of Lemon Grove and Monterey Heights, this is my plea:

We need protection from these speeding hit and run "murderers" on our narrow and winding streets. We decided quite some time ago that we wanted protection for our homes by way of the Lemon Grove Fire Department. Is it too much to ask for protection for our children and families? You citizens of Lemon Grove are the only ones who can provide this protection. When are we going to do it?

Wondering yours,
Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Mann
1882 Ensenada

Dear Mr. Mann:

State Highway Patrol is our traffic enforcing agency. They claim they haven't sufficient manpower for the county's side-streets and avenues.

One hope is an eventual Lemon Grove Police Department. Toward this end the Lemon Grove Men's Club started discussion last week on incorporation. Incorporation would permit residents to acquire whatever services they want and are willing to pay for.

The Editor

Dear Editor:

I just read in your newspaper an article telling about how much 100 new families added to our tax bill. However, nothing was said about the added revenue that these new families should bring in.

The addition of 100 new families means that 100 new homes must be built. These homes will pay an average of about $300.00 in property tax which means a $30,000 added income. Besides this these families pay sales tax and gasoline tax and about every other tax that the human mind can think of.

So it seems to us that these new families should be self supporting so far as taxes are concerned. However, if they are not self supporting and if every addition to our population means more taxes for each property owner in Lemon Grove, we wonder what the tax situation will be when a few more thousand families arrive.

B. Garrett
6905 Central
Lemon Grove

Dear Mr. Garrett:

One of the places our community is out of tax-killer is in our educational processes. Here's what I mean: Average assessed valuation for a Lemon Grove home is about $3,000. Elementary school tax rate last year was $1.89. That means tax on average home is $56.70.

Now, Mr. Garrett, it cost us $258 to school each child in the Lemon Grove system last year. Each family will have about two kids in one grade or another, so you can see that $56.70 gets a homeowner $516.00 worth of educational service. The difference is made up from state funds coming mostly from our sales tax money.

It's not the fault of the new families that this condition exists. It's the silly tax ideology that makes us think the other fellow is paying the bill.

New License Tabs to Have 3 Initials Plus Numbers

So your name's Dan and you'd like your 1956 license plates to spell it out, DAN-123, on Dan-triple nothing, or some other three-digit affix.

Perhaps you're a New Deal Democrat, and you'd like to immortalize the father of the New Deal by displaying on your car the famous initials FDR. Well, it's possible. It's also possible that some staunch Republicans will draw FDR or even HST. And a girl named MAY could very well come up with DAN and vice versa.

But it is not possible that the staunch Republican will be thrilled, or the Democrat irked, by having been issued a plate bearing the also-famous initials IKE. Nor will any fellow named Joe be able to get a plate bearing his name. For the letters "O," which looks like naught, and "I," which could be confused with "One," and "Q," because it resembles "O," are out.

All of which is by way of saying that California's unique 1956 license plate numbering system, consisting of three letters followed by three numerals, will be issued on a catch-as-can basis and ALL holds barred.

Nobody, nowhere, nohow, is going to get the plates he asks for by design. If J. E. Cornpone comes out of the scramble with a JEC plate, it'll be only because by sheer happenstance he applied for his license plates in the right town at the right motor vehicles department window at the right moment when the JEC series was being issued.

Several months ago the DMV disclosed the numbering system had been adopted for the new "five-year plan" of vehicle licensing beginning in 1956. The system works like this:

By progessing through the alphabet with three-letter combinations starting with AAA through AAB, AAC to AAZ and so on to ZAA and ending with ZZZ, there would be enough combinations to accommodate the ever-increasing number of vehicles in the state. Each combination of letters can be used 1,000 times with three digit figures, ranging from 000 to 999.

As Director Paul Mason and Registrar Al Veglia point out, however, not even all the remaining combinations in the alphabet will be used. To do so obviously would pose some delicate situations. So with the help of President Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California, DMV has eliminated such colorful three-letter words as ASS, BRA, BUG, BUM, GAG, JUG, LUG, RAT and RED, to mention a few.

Again, DMV's system will disappoint special plate seekers whose pet three-letter combos occur late in the alphabet. The letter designations will go no deeper for 1956 than "M" or "N" as initial letters. "MAX" and "NAP" may be issued if needed, but "RAY" and "TED" and "YUL" won't be seen until future years when replacements and new registrations have made deeper inroads. He thus made good his promise to Courtney that he would deliver to him some of the "sacred" soil. Thren's apparent casualness and the unusualness of the contents of the jar added to the frustrations of the customs men. They simply wouldn't believe anyone would be idiotic enough to bring back to America a jar of dirt. It took time, but Dan convinced them that it was plain Irish soil rather than uranium-impregnated Irish minerals.

The Irish soil is not all Thren brought back. He brought back, as any curious minded and intelligent young American business man might, some observations.

Here are some Threnisms:

Irish colleens are beautiful although some have to work as much as 83½ hours a week for $5; there is a move to restore the Gaelic tongue, which is to Ireland what the Indian language is to the U. S.; that the Irish hate the British worse than the British hated the Germans; that prices in Ireland are low. Room rent was a little lower than the rest of the continent, meals are high and egg prices are exactly the same as in Lemon Grove; that Dublin is a city surrounded by race tracks (11); Norway has a higher economy and far more happy people than in U.S.; that a waitress in London thought the English queen was also queen of the U. S.; that European manufacturers deplore the U. S. lack of pride in craftsmanship; that haircuts across the continent are: Ireland 28c; England 35c; France 61c; Switzerland 61c and Germany 35c; that liquor prices are about half U. S. prices; that a roast beef dinner at the U. S. Embassy in England is 45c; that French theatre usherettes demand a tip for seating; that in Stockholm there are over 400 day nurseries which are free; that they charge a $4 entrance fee at the Lido Casino; that it costs $3.50 to have a coat cleaned in Ireland and that coffee in Ireland is 25c to 95c depending on where you drink it and that beer and wine is considerably cheaper.

Thren is back at work at his old stand at 7358 Broadway.

Dan Thren, local realtor, (right) makes good his promise to his neighbor, Cliff Courtney, 7855 Lansing Drive, when he brings back a jar of the auld sod from Ireland. Soil is from base of Castle of Blarney. Thren returned last month after a two month trip abroad. Looking on is Courtney's six year old daughter Patricia. Courtney is a physical therapist at the San Diego Club.

Dan Thren, who operates a real estate firm in Lemon Grove, said recently that the time had come again for him to see the world. He had taken a trip abroad before.

Being a bachelor, he had only to consult his travel agent, who said, naturally, o.k.

So Thren threaded his way about the European continent. He brought back considerable lore, but he also brought back a jar of soil from the base of the Castle of Blarney in Ireland to his Monterey Heights friend, a transplanted Irishman, by the name of Cliff Courtney who lives at 7855 Lansing Drive in Monterey Heights.

From the day the new system was first announced, DMV has been deluged with requests from vehicle owners seeking specific letter combinations for their 1956 plates.

The broadcasting companies—NBC, CBS, ABC—and the automobile clubs, such as AAA, wanted to buy up the whole series of plates bearing their initials.

A Southern California group wanted the combination KCI-300—to indicate the name of the organization and its membership of 300.

An investment counselor wanted plates bearing the initials of virtually every member of his family, because:

"I got my first driver's license in California and have never been involved in a serious accident."

From a sorority came this one: "We would like to request that the block of license plates with the initials SAM be set aside for the members of our house to purchase."

(Note: SAM will not be issued at all. That happens to be the series reserved by DMV for use on sample plates, which have been photographed and widely publicized to acquaint motorists with the new plan.)

From Carlsbad:

"I own a distinctive Model A Ford, a 1931 convertible known as the 'A-400.' We of the Restorers Club believe that such a distinctive car should have a distinctive plate number. I would like to request a plate with the number A-400."

Another owner wanted this combination: KKK-1884.

The publisher a desert newspaper, eager to advertise Coachella Valley's famed sunshine, sent this telegram to Director Mason:

"Urgently request that the letters SUN be used to designate the 1956 license plates for cars in the desert area."

A Solana Beach citizen writes:

"I understand the new California license plates will have three letters and three numerals. This interests me very much as I sent you such a system in 1922. It would seem that I was the first to advocate such an arrangement. For that reason would appreciate it if you could issue me a license plate with the following letters—" the writer's initials.

An airman stationed in Nebraska wants a plate bearing the number of his squadron—418.

Here's one from a Los Gatos resident:

"For several years I have held the number A-440, and as I am a retired musician, and since the international pitch for tuning orchestral instruments is A-440 vibrations, I am very fond of wearing that number on my car, and am therefore asking if it is possible to have that number issued."

And a letter carrier would like USM-023, to designate US Mail Route 23.

A San Diego lady rings down the curtain:

"With the issuance of new licenses at hand, my husband and I would like to have a particular number.

"It is BOY-000'

"You see, we have five daughters and this is probably our only chance to have a boy."

To all these requests, Registrar Veglia says:

"The answer is a flat 'NO.' Inventories for the field offices of DMV are received from Folsom Prison, where the plates are manufactured. By sheer coincidence, John A. Doe may receive a plate such as JAD 283, but no possibility exists of planning the assignment of any plate carrying the JAD letters.

"In addition, John A. Doe's satisfaction with his plates cannot amount to much, as there will be 999 other vehicles carrying his initials around the state.

"Also, the securing of a special plate would be meaningless, because about 45 per cent of Californians sell or trade their cars during the registration year. The law requires that the plates remain with the car as identification, which means that after a sale or trade-in, the special numbers would no longer be displayed by the motorists who sought them."

SENTIMENTS OF A BENCH WARMER

By JACQUE BISPLINGHOFF

Can you define a "bench warmer"? You can't? Well, I think I can.

A "bench warmer," in this case connected with football, is a player who sees more of the game by sitting than by actual playing, meaning, of course, he's not the very top player.

You see, I am a high school student, and I have been on the bench for three years. I have played eight or nine quarters every season, but I have never experienced the thrill of knowing I've accomplished anything worth while for the team. My feelings? Well, I think I'm just a bettering-ram for the first string team. Most fellows would quit and say "I'm just a scrub player, and they don't need me."

I'm personally not like that. Who am I, you may ask? I'm the average ballplayer who is not too bad, not too good. I have my faults, such as not paying attention when signals are called or not running quite low enough when I'm carrying the ball. You would probably say, "Why don't you try harder and correct your mistakes?" I think I do, but if I did I would be playing football instead of writing about it.

Ask any coach and he will tell you that a team is only as good as the subs on the bench.

I've often wondered why "Jim" was playing first string instead of me. I practiced as hard as he did, but I'll have to admit he was just a little faster than I. Wait! Hold it a minute! I asked a question and then turned around and answered it. Naturally if he is as good as I am all around and just a little faster, he is the logical one to play.

Well, folks, I think I have said what I have wanted to. Just remember in the future when you go to your local high school or college football game, give a yell for the fellows on the bench. They, too, would like to score a TD, make a clean tackle or throw a good, hard block to help win the game.

I would like to urge any teenager, who has the creative writing desire to send in their stories, similar to the type of article you are presently reading, to me in care of this newspaper office for possible publication. Thank you!

TELCO IS HOST TO SCHOOL FOLK

Personnel from Lemon Grove schools attended the Educator-Telephone Dinner last Tuesday evening, November 22, as the guests of Pacific Telephone. Superintendents and principals of both city and county schools received invitations to attend the dinner and program held at the House of Hospitality, Balboa Park.

Telephone personnel demonstrated the growth of both schools and telephone service throughout the city and county over the past 60 years and showed the 200 educators present the new cross-country dialing system to go into effect here next year. Lemon Grove was represented by Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Solleder, Margaret L. Darroch, and Harold Brogan.

Approval of Building Plans for Congregational Church to Be Asked

The First Congregational Church of Lemon Grove will take another big step toward its goal of a new sanctuary at an all-member meeting on Friday, December 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary. The meeting is being called by the building council to ask for a vote of acceptance of the building plans as submitted by the architects and as modified as a result of the building council meeting of November 22.

At the meeting of the building council a motion was made and passed as follows: "We recommend to the church membership that the plans as submitted, in general, and as modified, be accepted." Suggested modifications are now in the hands of the architects, who will have them ready for consideration at the December 9 meeting.

Choice of a plan is one of the major steps in the realization of the goal, and it is the expressed opinion of the building council that acceptance should be by the total church membership after all who are concerned with the planning of the new sanctuary are urged to attend the December 9 meeting.
